SAYS "CENTRE DEMOCRAT" IS UNVARNISHED LIAR

Manager Laird Curtin Riddles Political Canard.

FURNACE NOT CLOSED

Curtin Forge Shut Down During Hot Weather Not Due to Scarcity of Orders - No Desire to Return to Democratic Empty Dinner Pail.

Quite in keeping with the methods of the "third party" promoters, the "Centre Democrat," in its last issue, published a malicious lie in its efforts to belittle the Republican party and the protective tariff. The "Centre Democrat" said:

"The charcoal furnace at Curtin closed down temporarily on account of a scarcity of orders. Will Manager Laird Curtin step out on the rostrum and explain why he has to bank his furnace under a high protective tariff and whether he doesn't think the Republican full dinner pail a big farce?"

Manager Curtin, after reading the foregoing, made the following statement to "The Republican":

"The 'Centre Democrat' publishes a deliberate lie. The Curtin furnace is not closed down. The forge has not been running for a short time for the sole reason that the weather has been too hot for the men to work. This usually is the case at this period of the year. Happily for us and contrary to what the 'Centre Democrat' says, we are not experiencing a 'scarcity of orders.'

"So far as the 'Republican full dinner pail' is concerned, I can only too easily recall the many empty dinner pails at the Curtin iron works when the Democratic party was in control of affairs. The men at the works remember only too well what that meant to them. They do not need to have their minds refreshed [illegible] that when the Democratic party was in power it was a case of smokeless stacks, idle mills and factories, empty dinner pails and universal distress. I have yet to find any of the men at the Curtin works who care to return to such a condition of affairs."

It would appear that Mr. Curtin's opinion is that the "Centre Democrat" is an unvarnished liar. His discovery is, however, by no means original.

The "Centre Democrat" no doubt would rejoice to see the Curtin furnace forced to close down because of a 'scarcity of orders.' For the sake of a little political capital the "Centre Democrat" confesses that it would like to see scores of honest workingmen, at Curtin, thrown out of employment and their families forced into suffering and want. Deliberately manufacturing its base falsehood the "Centre Democrat" brazenly heralds it abroad that an honored Centre County industry has been forced to close. The serious phase of the incident is that such a slander is calculated to do untold injury to the credit and good name of the company. Many an institution has been wrecked by the circulation of just such false statements.

If such lying, deceit and misrepresentation of facts constitute the foundation of the proposed "Third party," it will be a sorry day for Centre County industries and Centre County workingmen if the "Third party" is ever placed in power in Pennsylvania.

Defeated Bellefonte, 2—0, in Hotly Contested Game Yesterday.

After winning three games straight from Clearfield, Bellefonte yesterday met defeat at the hands of the strong Osceola club, at Osceola, the score being 2—0. The game was hotly contested. In the seventh inning Osceola led by a single run, but scored another before the ninth.

Bellefonte and Osceola were tied for first place until yesterday, the latter then stepping into the lead. Since our last issue, the Mountain League has been formed, with Bellefonte, Osceola, Philipsburg and Clearfield being the towns represented. Yesterday's game was the first played between Bellefonte and Osceola. Bellefonte won the opening game of the season from Philipsburg and then, after losing to Clearfield, won three straight from that club on the local grounds.

An instand later he toppled to the floor dead.

CELEBRATED FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. David B. Schenck Married Half a Century Ago.

RESIDE NEAR HOWARD

Wedding Ceremony Was Performed by Squire Mahaffey—Schenck Family One of Largest and Most Widely Known in Bald Eagle Valley.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Schenck, near Howard, was the scene of a happy and pleasant event on Friday, July 8. On that day they rounded out just half a century of married life and their golden wedding anniversary was appropriately celebrated.

Just fifty years ago David B. Schenck and Katherine Schenck, a daughter of the late Jonathan Schenck, were united in marriage by 'Squire James Mahaffey, of Howard. They have since resided in the immediate vicinity of their birth and have been happy, contented and prosperous. For some time past Mr. and Mrs. Schenck and their many friends had been looking forward with pleasure to this day and consequently it was a very enjoyable occasion to all.

The Schenck family is one of the largest and most widely known in the Bald Eagle Valley and in anticipation of the large number of guests the large lawn fronting the house was partly covered with a cool and shady pavilion, constructed of spruce, while the porch and home were handsomely decorated. Over the entrance to the porch were the dates "1860" and "1910" in gold figures and these were connected by a chain of fifty golden links.

About 11 o'clock the wedding party emerged from the house and proceeded across the lawn to the pavilion in the following order: Misses Elsie Gardner and Rena Casselberry, granddaughters; three daughters, Mrs. J. Wells Smith, Mrs. William Pletcher, and Mrs. George Casselberry, and one son, Herbert, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Schenck At the pavilion they were met by Rev. Rollin S. Taylor, who read a beautiful and appropriate service. The guests then congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Schenck on having attained this period in life and wished them many more years of health, happiness and connubial bliss.

The dinner hour having arrived the guests were invited to partake of one of the most delightful and appetizing repasts that one would care to sit down to and for which these good folks are noted. In all there were eighty-one guests present and the occasion will long be remembered by all. The bride was the recipient of many valuable presents, among them being almost a hundred dollars in gold, four gold brooches and a handsome mahogany writing desk, and many other articles. The day was a most delightful one and added much to the spirit and pleasure of the occasion. During the afternoon Photographer Swope, of Lock Haven, appeared and took photographs of the wedding party and entire assemblage.

Among the guests from out of town were, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wells Smith and Miss Elsie Gardner, of Shirleysburg; Mr. and Mrs. William Pletcher, of Eagles Mere; Mr. and Mrs. George Casselberry and children, Rena, Russell, Raymond and Robert, of Williamsport; Mr. and Mrs. Cleo. Worthington, of Muncy; Mrs. Lydia Corman, of Sunbury; Mrs. Lavina Moore, of Flemington; Joseph Hayes sister, Hanna, of Salona; Mrs. John Robb, Jersey Shore; Mrs. Kate Welch, Nathan Stouck, wife and child, of Johnstown.

WILLIAM GEHRET KILLED BY PLUNGE INTO TRAIN

Was Leaping From Automobile to Avoid Collision at Hecla.

COMPANIONS ESCAPED

Henry Lowrey and Lawrence McMullin, Who Remained Seated in Machine, Were not Injured—Tragic Ending to Pleasure Trip.

Fearing a collision with a freight train, while out for a pleasure ride in Henry Lowrey's automobile, on Wednesday of last week, William Gehret, aged 75 years, a highly respected citizen of Bellefonte, attempted to jump to a place of safety and instead plunged head foremost into a steel coal car, at Hecla Park. His skull was fractured and his body terribly crushed. He died two hours later in the Bellefonte hospital.

The most remarkable feature of the tragedy was that Mr. Lowrey and Lawrence McMullin, who were in the front seats of the automobile, escaped without injury. The car crashed into the train, striking it a sliding blow. Before the automobile could be overturned Mr. Lowrey gave it a quick shift away from the train and turned on all power at his command. Although one front wheel was still under the train, the automobile shot off to the side and the next instant its occupants were out of danger. The train could not be stopped until the last car had about passed the automobile. The only iujuries to the machine were a badly bent fender and a scraped top.

Mr. Lowry and Mr. Gehret were close friends. The latter had asked to be taken for a pleasure spin in the former's machine a day or two prior to the accident. Mr. Lowrey forgot about the matter, until on Wednesday, when passing the Gehret home, on East Bishop Street, he laughingly called to Mr. Gehret to join him for a ride to Hecla. The run to Hecla was without incident. They visited the new club house of the Country Club and, with Mr. McMullin also in the machine, were leaving the park when the accident occurred. The freight train was running as an "extra" and consequently nobody in the machine had any thought of danger. To the left of the road approaching the railroad tracks is a clump of thick brush, shutting off any view of the tracks. It was not until the automobile was almost upon the tracks that the freight train loomed up. It was too late to stop the automobile and Mr. Lowrey adopted the only course left open, that of turning sharply to the side.

Mr. Gehret was seated in the rear of the automobile. When he saw the freight train almost upon the machine he stood up. It is supposed that he believed a collision unavoidable and that he jumped just as the machine was making its sudden turn to the left. His head struck the iron step at the end of a steel car in front of him and his body was dragged a short distance. When picked up he was unconscious. He was brought to Bellefonte on the afternoon passenger train and removed to the hospital. Shortly after 6 o'clock that evening he died.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Revs. C. C. Shuey, Fred W. Barry and C. W. Winey. A delegation from Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R. attended the services.

William Gehret was a splendid citizen, a brave soldier and a man who had many friends. By all he was held in the highest esteem and the news of his tragic death occasioned the deepest sorrow in the community. The regard in which he was held by those who knew him best was fittingly expressed by a fellow-soldier, Emanuel Noll, who commenting on Mr. Gehret's war record, said:

"You can say that he was one of the best soldiers that ever wore the United States uniform; there was none better."

Mr. Gehret was born September 4, 1835. He enlisted, July 1, 1861, in Company E, First Penna. Cavalry, and was honorably discharged September 9, 1864.

Surviving Mr. Gehret are a widow and the following children: Edward M., Harry, Elizabeth and Mrs. Orian Kline.

OUR HAT IS OFF

D. C. Walter, 82 Years Old, Walks Three Miles to Order "Republican."

When a man wants a thing he usually goes after it. One day last week "The Republican" was honored in a fashion that we deeply appreciated. D. C. Walter, formerly of Bellefonte but now residing beyond Milesburg, walked to town and called at "The Republican" office.

"I have a little business to transact with you", he remarked by way of greeting, and he proceeded to hand over a one dollar bill.

"I saw a copy of your paper a few days ago", he continued, "and I liked it. I want you to send it to me for a year."

During the course of our little chat we guessed at Mr. Walter's age, only to miss it by ten years. He is 82 years old. Early that morning he had walked from his home to Bellefonte and he appeared as fresh when he arrived here as if he had walked but a block of two. Mr. Walter is an old soldier and has a good war record. He is making his home with his niece, Mrs. E. E. Walter, who until recently resided at Philadelphia.

STORM CAUSES DAMAGE

Barn Blown Down, Orchard Ruined and Fields Washed by Rain.

Considerable damage was done in Centre County by the severe storm on Tuesday. Many acres of grain were badly washed, while in many cases whole fields of oats were hammered down. The greatest damage was done to the corn crop, the corn in many fields being broken off by the wind and rain.

At Curtin the storm swept off a part of the roof of the Curtin furnace and blew down the coal storage house.

The orchard on the John Wagner farm, near Milesburg, was almost totally ruined. Many large trees was uprooted and the fruit stripped from the branches. But one tree was left standing.

The Colonel James Weaver farm, also near Milesburg, suffered by the storm. The large barn on the farm was moved about fifteen inches from its natural position on the foundation. The corn barn on the farm was blown down.

At Zion the rain hammered down the oats in a number of fields. At Pine Grove Mills and State College many fields were washed out.

Those present from a distance were Isaac Ward, Clark, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. John Enguard, of Rocky River, Ohio.

COMPANY L DRENCHED IN GETTYSBURG CAMP

Bellefonte Boys Greeted by Heavy Rain on Arrival.

ALL HANDS ARE WELL

Down To Hard Work but Enjoying Life - Dr. Huff Returns Home on Learning of Father's Death—No Colonel Elected for 12th Regiment.

By J. Homer Decker.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 13—A heavy downpour of rain was the welcome accorded Company L. when the Bellefonte boys arrived here on Sunday afternoon. But a part of the camp equipment was in place when we arrived and this necessitated a quick dash to get the remainder of the tents up. As it was many of the boys got a good soaking.

By this time all hands are down to hard work and the routine of the soldier's life. The fact that all the boys are perfectly well shows that they are made of the right kind of stuff and able to hold up their end. Numerous rains have interfered somewhat the plans outlined by those in charge, but even so it is regarded as one of the most successful camps held in recent years.

Our journey from Bellefonte was interesting and instructive. With Captain Hugh S. Taylor in command we left Bellefonte in a special train at 6.30 o'clock, Sunday morning, arriving here about 4 o'clock that afternoon. The comfort of the boys was well looked after on the trip by Sergeant Linn Blackford, Harry Taylor, Clarence McCafferty, Gladstone Taylor, Claude Smith and Dr. S. M. Huff.

At Lock Haven we were joined by Company H, while at Williamsport we were welcome by four more companies and the regimental band and a large crowd of people. Company G joined us at Milton. A hot box delayed our train a short time at Northumberland [illegible] laid over about one hour at Harrisburg while the water coolers and ice boxes were refilled. Here several additional companies were attached to our already long train. Before reaching Harrisburg we passed through some beautiful country. Near Liverpool the hay appeared to be made, most of the wheat cut and hauled in and quite a little oats also cut. East of Harrisburg the corn looked fine, standing higher than the fences and being in tassel.

The boys worked until 11 o'clock Sunday night getting the camp in readiness. On the first night in camp Cole, Coble and Casper, with Corporal, Robb were assigned to guard duty. Monday and Tuesday and today witnessed the boys hard at work on the field.

CAMP NOTES.

Cook William Smith, with his assistant, gave us a fine breakfast on our first morning here. Each man had two poached eggs and toast, biscuits and hot coffee.

On receiving news of the death of his father, Dr. S. M. Huff was immediately furloughed and departed for home. The boys of the company extend their deepest sympathy.

James Matthews is a very jolly fellow; he is a favorite with all the boys.

No election has been held thus far to choose a new Colonel for the Twelfth regiment, of which Company L is a part.

SPINACH

One of the Most Valuable Vegetables Often Spoiled in Cooking.

Spinach, one of the most healthful of vegetables, is now both cheap and plentiful, but it is nearly always spoiled in the cooking. Instead of being tasty, and of its handsome natural green color, it is usually black and tasteless. The uninitiated person fancies it must be wonderfully nutritious because it is heralded as served with egg. The egg, be it mentioned usually being a tiny segment of a hard-boiled egg about as digestible as scrap tin. But people go right on eating it in this fashion because they either don't know any better or can't get any better. That team, inability and ignorance, is an awful handicap, and a tragic one when it comes to ruining one's health. And it is more than difficult to get away from what has once impressed one as worth while.

A sample of the gross ignorance that pervades some atmospheres in which wisdom is thought to shine is given in the following recipe for cooking spinach in a daily newspaper:

"Trim off the stalks of three quarts of fresh spinach, discarding all stale leaves. Thoroughly wash and rapidly drain; plunge into a gallon of boiling water with a teaspoonful of salt and boil for 10 minutes. Take up with a skimmer, drain on a sieve, press out all the water and chop very finely; then place in a saucepan."

In this way of cooking all the good in the spinach is thrown away, drowned in that boiling cauldron, and one eats the waste matter, profiting only by whatever seasoning may be in it. In this day of adulterations the seasoning may not be over nutritious. The only sane part of the recipe is the cleaning, washing and draining of the leaves.

Cooking spinach to retain its flavor and food value is another matter.

First remove all but the fresh leaves, wash in a number of waters, not only until it is clean, but until every particle of sand is removed. Then drain. Enough water will adhere in which to cook it, the leaves being put in a hot, covered saucepan or kettle, over a moderate fire, shaking or stirring it until there is sufficient water in which it may simmer. A sprinkle of salt should be added. It will cook in twenty minutes, and it will be beautifully, naturally green, and retain its goodness. The less water there is to throw away after cooking a vegetable the less value goes down the drain pipe. Some cooks put half a cup of water in, but this not necessary. Two tablespoonfuls of butter, two of cream and a dash of pepper finish the seasoning.

To make an attractive-looking dish, [illegible] be finely chopped, [illegible] turned to the fire, when the seasoning is added, then turned quickly into a bowl, packed firmly to mold, and turned into a hot dish. Garnish with toast triangles and hard boiled eggs cut into sixths lengthwise. —Philadelphia Record.

Bathing-Suit Fashions.

"Today the well-dressed girl's bathing-outfit is a convincing illustration that fashions, at least along some lines, are improving as the days go by," says Grace Margaret Gould in Woman's Home Companion for July. "Bathing-suits reflect the trend of the prevailing fashion. They are smart in style and decidedly—occasionally a little too shapely—and they are made of modish fabrics and are trimmed in most attractive ways.

"And not the smallest accessory of the bathing-suit is forgottan every little detail is considered. The girl who studies her clothes and who cares especially for appropriateness in dress is very particular about her bathing-costume. She wants it to be stylish, to be sure, but she is equally anxious that in no way shall it be conspicuous.

"In deciding upon the color for her suit, she generally selects either a dark blue, dark brown or black. Such shades as red, light tan or white are only permissible for the well-dressed little girl. The grown-up girl keeps the foundation coloring of her bathing-suit dark and introduces the bright color-note, if she must have it, in the trimming." Woman's Home Companion.

TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING THE BASIS OF SUCCESS.

Since the Ingredients Entering Peruna Are Known, Its Power as a Catarrh Remedy and Tonic is Understood.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—The active ingredients entering the most popular household remedy in the world have been made known to the public. This means a new era in the advertising of popular family medicines—Peruna leads.

Peruna contains among other things, golden seal, powerful in its effect upon the mucous membranes. Cedron seed, a rare medicine and unsurpassed tonic. Cubebs, valuable in nasal catarrh and affections of the kidneys and bladder. Stone root, valuable for the nerves, mucous membranes as well as in dropsy and indigestion.

Art of Preserving Fruit.

Before you buy your fruit for preserving see that you are well supplied with fresh rubbers, glasses, one or two long-handled spoons, a tin jar filler, and above all, at least three or four small iron pots lined with porcelain. These may be bought for a trifle, and if you wish your fruit to be clear and bright looking, never cook more than 2 pounds at a time.

This is where the necessity for several pots arises, as by a little management one can have three or four pots ready without loss of time. By allowing ten minutes to elapse before putting the second pot over the fire the first one will be ready to take off before the second one needs attention.

As the strawberry is first on the list of preserves a word in regard to the selection of the fruit is perhaps advisable. Do not set a day for this work and then run out and purchase the berries regardless of the weather, but select a day following clear, sunshiny weather, for then the fruit will be free from sand and rich in flavor. Be careful that the berries are of good size and not too ripe.

STRAWBERRIES.

Wash, pick and weigh 2 pounds of berries and cover with 1½ pounds of granulated sugar and half a cup of water. While this is coming to the boiling point prepare the second lot in the same way and so continue with the third and fourth. This is a great time-saver, and you can accomplish a great deal in a short time. Skim the berries carefully and when the drops cling to the spoon the berries are ready to put into the jars. Pint jars, or if the family is quite small, jelly tumblers, are the best to use. While waiting for the last pot write the labels and add the date, and when the jars are cool enough to handle wash them with a damp cloth, stick on the label and put away in a dark closet.

PINEAPPLE.

Pineapple makes a delicious preserve if done in this way: Grate half a dozen pineapples and measure. Take three quarters of a cup of pineapple and fill the cup with cold water; then take a cup of granulated sugar and put into a pot. Boil until the pineapples become clear, skimming frequently to remove all the scum that comes to the top. When the sirup clings to the spoon it is done and should stand until it is cool before putting it into the glasses. Cover with paper dipped in brandy and paste paper over the tops rather than use the tin lids that come with the glasses.

CHERRIES.

Oxheart cherries make one of the most attractive of preserves if three-quarters of a pound of sugar is used to each pound of fruit. For pie 1 pound of sugar is [illegible]

CURRANTS.

After cherries will come currants, and to make a perfect jelly it is best to make it early inJuly. Wash the currants and put them in a large kettle with one pint of water to start the juices. Heat, but do not boil. Take off the fire and mash, then drain until all the juice is extracted. Now strain through a cheese-cloth bag and stand away over night well covered. Weigh 1 pound of sugar and spread it out on a flat pan and put it into the oven to heat. Measure one pint of currant juice, boil for twenty minutes, then pour the hot sugar into it, stirring quickly until the sugar is dissolved. Let the joice heat to the boiling point, but do not boil, then pour it quickly into the glasses as soon as the jelly begins to form.

Comfort Dresses.

"Comfort dresses, that is the new name the up-to-date girl calls her tub dresses this year and she plans them in every particular so that they will be a credit to their name," says Grace Margaret Gould in the WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION for July.

"They are smart in style, she wouldn't own them if they were not. They are most simple in design, yet they carry distinction. And they are sure to be becoming, for their colorings are specially charming.

"There is no doubt that extravagance is running riot this season as far as one's afternoon and evening frocks go. But Fashion makes up for this recklessness by looking with favor upon many materials for simple morning dresses which are extremely inexpensive and extremely good looking.

"The fancy cottons, the ginghams, the percales and piques, and the plain and novelty linens were never before seen in such an array of lovely colorings. The blue tints seem to lead and their different shades are many, the old blue and gentian-blue tones being more to the fore than the turquoise and blue-green tints. Then there are the tans and yellows and buffs which vie with one another in their soft, becoming shades. The lavenders are also in favor and very many grays and clever black and white mixtures are seen in these wash fabrics. It is easy to see from this that the comfort dresses are pretty to look at and apt to be becoming to about every woman.

"They have no high stiff collars, but are cut low in the neck in varions ways. Some show the Dutch neck, others are a little higher in the neck and finished with a soft turn-down embroidered collar, and then for the girl who does not look well in either of these styles there is the waist with the round neck, finished with some attractive trimming-band."

The Coolest Man Present.

A Massachusetts congressman who was on board the train which was wrecked at Hyde Park, Mass,, says that when the shock came, one of the passengers was pitched over several seats just in time to receive the contents of the water cooler, which tipped over and soaked his clothing. A highly excited passenger hushed up to him and told him to keep cool. "Go away," said the wet man. "I am the coolest man in the car. I have just had two buckets of ice water emptied down my back."

Middlemen's Profits.

When fruits and vegetables are retailed currently at 100 per cent to many hundred per cent above what the producer receives for them, the conclusion is inevitable that there are too many middlemen and that their profits are exorbitant. When the consumer is cheated into the bargain by means of the customary false weights and measures, he is entitled in some degree to feel aggrieved.

Mr. B. F. Yoakum, in an address this month before the National Convention at St. Louis of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union, showed that the benefits of heavy reductions in freight rates during recent years have not been shared by farmers or consumers. The $2.25 paid to the Florida farmer, for a bushel of green beans becomes $2.75 for the 50-cent journey by rail of 800 miles. This amount the middleman pays. But for that bushel of beans the consumers pay $6.40. A part of this excessive price no doubt represents sheer robbery. But much of it was accounted for by Mr. William C. Brown, president of the New York Central lines, in a recent address before the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce.

"I live in an apartment building in New York, which contains about forty apartments. Since the agitation in regard to prices has been in progress I have taken pains to observe the methods of the retailers of meats, vegetables and groceries, and I have seen fifteen delivery wagons, each with a box or basket or two, waiting in each other's way to get into the area where delivery to the apartments is made. One wagon with one team and one driver would have handled, without trouble, all that the fifteen wagons contained."

Then he recorded another fact of common observation:

"In the four sides of one city block, not far from where I live, there are sixteen small stores or markets selling groceries, vegetables, meats, etc. Four of them could, without any trouble whatever, do all the business done by the sixteen:"

For this condition the remedy was obvious:

"To consolidate the sixteen establishments into four, effecting the economies which would result, would seem to be a work of wisdom and philanthropy.

"My suggestion would be that twelve of these shopkeepers take their twelve teams, their twelve drivers and their clerks and go out into the country and become producers, instead of consumers; that they add something to the wealth of the country by creating it, instead of interposing an unnecessary and uncalled for expense between the producer and the consumer."

In this simple suggestion is more wisdom than will be found in all the reports of all the commissions on the cost of living.—From the New York Times.

Heart Troubles

The heart may be weak just the same as the eyes, stomach or other organs. It often happens that a person is born with a weak heart. Then again disease, fevers, over-exertion, anxiety, nervousness, rheumatism, etc. weaken the heart. The result is shortness of breath, palpitation, pain in the heart, or in some of the nerves of the chest or abdomen. The heart should be strengthened with a tonic, and for this nothing equals Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"I had LaGrippe last fall as I thought in a mild form. I was weak, tired feeling, and short of breath; could hardly go about, and a good deal of the time sort of an asthmatic breathing and extremely nervous. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine and now I feel so much better in every way. I am so thankful that I began taking this medicine, and shall not hesitate to tell others how much good it has done me."

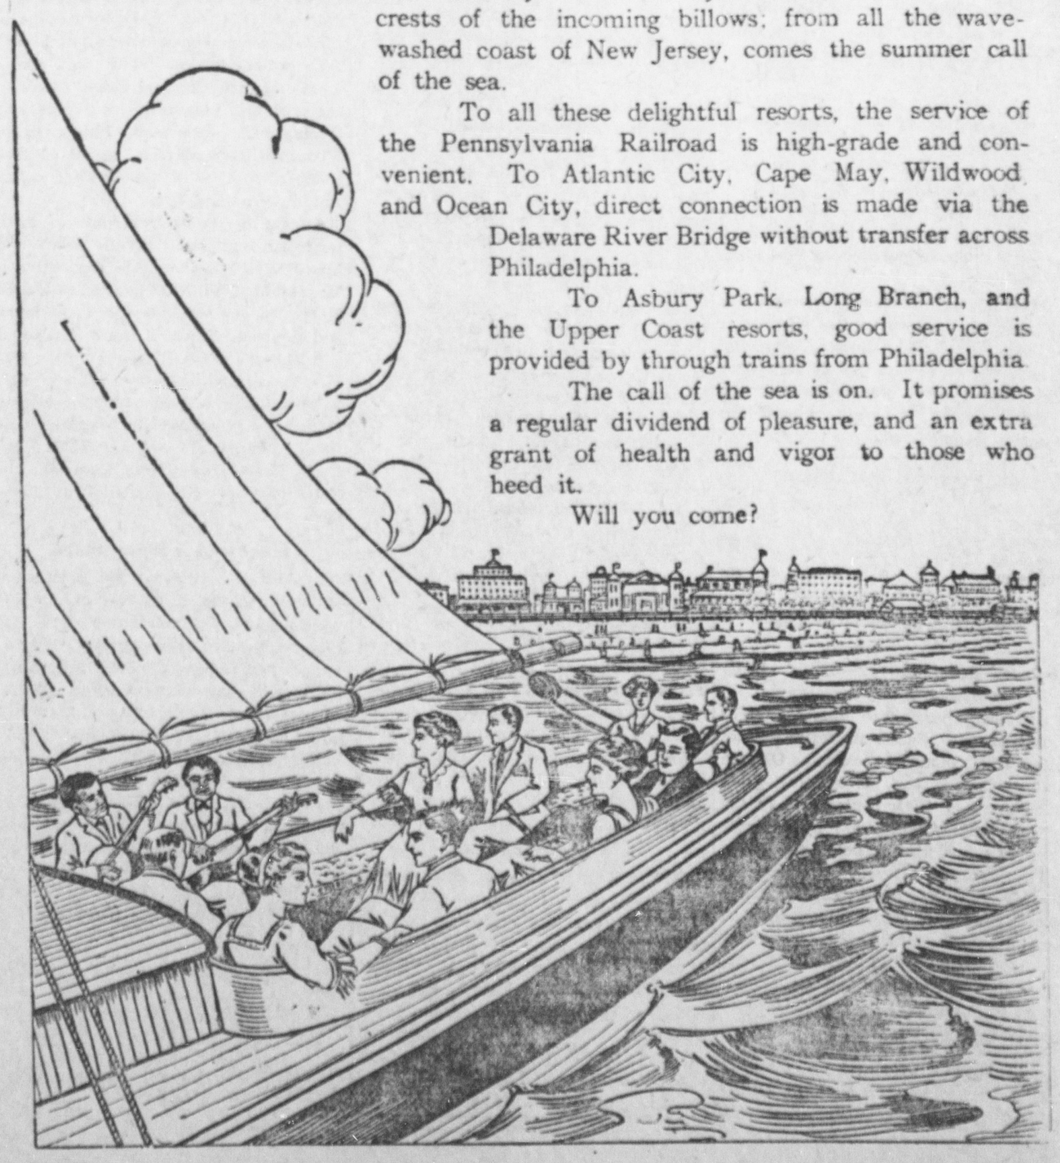
THE CALL OF THE SEA.

"The water is fine; come in!"

From gay Atlantic City comes the call; from witching Wildwood; from Cape May in the flush of her rejuvenation; from Asbury Park and Long Branch where the rare beauty of the country with its sylvan shades meets the crests of the incoming billows; from all the wave-washed coast of New Jersey, comes the summer call of the sea.



To all these delightful resorts, the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad is high-grade and convenient. To Atlantic City, Cape May, Wildwood and Ocean City, direct connection is made via the Delaware River Bridge without transfer across Philadelphia.

To Asbury Park, Long Branch, and the Upper Coast resorts, good service is provided by through trains from Philadelphia.

The call of the sea is on. It promises a regular dividend of pleasure, and an extra grant of health and vigor to those who heed it.

A Woman to be Pitied.

Mrs. Hetty Green is known as the richest women in the world. Whether this is true or not, it is true that she is very wealthy, and that the unknown number of millions she possesses have been accumulated through the exercise of her own financial skill. She was never a poor woman, as ordinary folk estimate poverty, for she inherited a large estate from her father, but she has always lived as if she were poor. Instead of following the normal life, content with the income of the half million or so of her inheritance, she preferred to deprive herself and her family of the comforts and advantages that wealth offers, and also of the broader outlook on life that riches properly used enable one to obtain. All this deprivation was for the sake of accumulating a larger fortune.

She had undoubtedly great financial talent, and it is a talent much to be desired in a day when money means more than it even meant in the world before, and Mrs. Green is not to be criticised for putting it to use. She had as much right to cultivate and exercise her gift for money-making as if it were a gift that would have made of her a great singer or artist or writer. The thing for which she is to be criticised—for which, rather, she is to be pitied—is that she chose to sacrifice all other desirable things in life to this one pursuit. She bent all her energies to the gaining of money and more money and developed such a love for the dollar that she grudged the spending of every one she was forced to part with. She is a woman of intelligence, and might have found pleasure in the society of cultivated men and women, but she lived in a way that cut her off from association with such people; she was born to the ways of refinement, but her later surroundings have been sordid and her manner of life beggarly.

If she had denied herself that she might appiy her wealth to great uses, another face would be put on the matter, but she saved simply because the dollar had become the greatest thing in life to her; she worshiped the money for what it was, not for what it could do. She lost sight of real values and became avaricious, penurious, grasping. The other day she appeared in court to fight the payment of an honest debt of a few hundred dollars, feeble, broken mentally as well as physically, childish in her wrath over the demand made upon her, the ruling passion strong to the last—a most unlovely sight. Her career has been a remarkable one in that she has offered a striking proof of what a woman may do in a field little known to women and an example on the other hand of what a woman ought not to do. Mrs. Green has had a great opportunity, but has seen only one phase of it, being blind to the fact that money is a means, not an end. It is a pity. From the Indianapolis (Ind.) Star.

Rural Social Settlement.

Mrs. Russell Sage, with her multifold benevolences, may be the good angel who will put in operation the first experimental group of the National Farm Homes, a project which wholly originated in Missouri, and seems to have in it potentialities that may in time revolutionize farm life in America.

Mrs. Sage has been studying the plan, and it is stated has signified her willingness to finance it in its beginnings. After being properly set going, it must work out its own salvation, as it is founded on business principles, and is in no way a charity.

Briefly recapitulated, the "farm homes" proposed are small farms of 40 acres each or less, lying contiguous to a central farm of 160 acres, which will be conducted as a school of instruction in intensive farming by experts. The smaller farms will be sold on long-time payments mostly to city people who desire to go "back to the soil."

The lessons taught on the central farm will instruct the 40-acre farmers how to make the wonderful incomes that now excite wonder and enthusiasm when described occasionally in the magazine devoted to rural life.

The latest of these tales appeared in Outing some time ago, and related the extraordinary success of a city man with 13 acres, which he made so productive that he was able to purchase from the profits another small farm in Florida, so that he now spends his winters there and his summers in the North, having devised for himself and his family an ideal mode of existance.

By grouping the beginners in a widely dispersed village about the rural social settlement, as one might call it, the colonists are not isolated, they secure the same social relations they have in the city, and with a central public library, amusement hall and means of diversion each group becomes a little Arcadia of itself.

Farmers of the old school may be quick to see the advantages of the innovation and may rearrange their holdings so that the same plan may spread indefinitely in the farming sections.

Must be Above Suspicion.

Kidney and bladder ailments are so serious in their consequences, and if unchecked so often fatal that any remedy offered for their cure must be above suspicion. Foley Kidney Pills contain no harmful drugs, and have successfully stood a long and thorough test. Sold by C. M. Parrish.

Values in Bread.

Bread, the staff of life in North America and Europe, is practically unknown as such in the greater part of the world, and much more than two-thirds of the people living on this planet are ignorant of such as an article of food. Nevertheless, bread, or rather the various kinds of bread that are used as food, forms the most nourishing diet known to science

But, strangely enough the most expensive bread is by no means the most nourishing, and indeed, the most expensive of all breads-the fine white loaf bread of wealthy Americans-is perhaps the least in value as regards the chemicals it supplies for renewing thedemands made upon the body. Black bread-a term usually taken to mean poor bread-is really more nourishing than the white loaf, and in general terms it can be stated as an absolute fact that the finer the flour the less chemical value it has wnen put in the human stomach.

Black bread usually refers to bread made up from rye, but the barley loaf of bread is very nourishing and is more easily digested than either the wheat or rye product. Barley bread has passed out of ordinary use, yet 200 years ago it furnished the bulk of the bread stuff eaten in England, and today is the staple article of food in all of Europe north of the German Empire.

As regards the nutritive values of rye and wheat bread, chemists favor the bread slightly, it contained more soluble carbohydrates. On the other hand, and wheat contains slightly more gluten, which is a valuable food product. The other chemical differences beteen rye or black bread and the wheat bread are very slight indeed.

For poorer people rye bread has the distinct advantage of keeping fresh much longer than wheat bread. Also it is more easily digested and it has a a slight laxative quality. Therefore, for countless of dwellers in cities, tied down to desks and office work, the rye bread is useful. It is well to change from rye to wheat bread and by alternating between the two the health can be greatly improved.

Fashions in Beards.

In ancient times the beard was the badge of manhood insignia of dignity and authority. This remains true in the Jewish race, and the strongest oath of the devout Mohammedan is "by the beard of the prophet." Sculptured images of the kings of Assyria and Babylon show long and unusual beards. In those days slaves were compelled to go smooth shaven, and the beardless youth was an object of scorn.

In Greece and Rome the custom varied with the periods. Most of the great Romans of later times went without beards. In the middle ages and in the Elizabethan era beards were generally worn, although occasionally a beardless monarch started a fad that made the barbers happy.

In Great Britain and this country in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the beard was almost unknown. In the nineteenth century it again came into favor. Most of the young men of fifty years ago wore beards. The mustache is far less common today than beards were fifty years ago.

The French Army divided into factions on the question of whiskers. A bitter campaign has been waged for several months by the supporters of a petty officer in the Moroccan naval division, who insisted on wearing a beard 14 inches in length in spite of all the official threats and entreaties. For eight months the man has not left his ship, and meanwhile his beard had grown steadily. Now a decree has been prepared by the Ministry of the Marine which will limit all beards to 2 1-5 inches in lengh.

TWO STOCK DEALS.

Sherwood Took Flood's Boast and Later Handed It Back.

In Joseph L. King's "History of the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board" is this story of Flood and Sherwood:

In the early days, in the seventies, quite a number of operators would gather together in Cahill's office on Montgomery street, near California. Among them were Mr. James C. Flood and Mr. Robert Sherwood. Sherwood had 1,000 Consolidated Virginia, the stock selling at about $100. One day Sherwood, on looking at the prices, remarked that he was getting tired of that Consolidated Virginia; it did not move much. Mr. Flood said: "What are you growling about? If you are tired of that stock I will take it off your hands at $100." "Sold," said Sherwood, and the stock changed hands.

In course of time the Nevada bank building was erected on the corner of Pine and Montgomery streets. On meeting Sherwood one day Mr. Flood remarked, "We built that Nevada block on the profits of that 1,000 shares of Consolidated Virginia you sold us."

Subsequently, in the Sierra Nevada and Union deal, Mr. Flood approached Sherwood on the street and bought from him 5,000 Union at $200 a share, the transaction footing up $1,000,000.

Sherwood built the Union block, on the gore corner of Pine, Davis and Market streets. Meeting Flood one day, he remarked, "I built that Union block with the profits of that 5,000 Union I sold you."

A WARM GREETING.

She Overcame the Rules and Met Him at the Station.

She was rushing through the gate past Bill Gibson, the gateman, like a passenger train by a flag station, but Gibson stopped her.

"Let's see your ticket, lady," he asked politely enough.

"Oh, I have no ticket," she said, "but won't you please let me through. I want to"—

"It's against the rules," cut in Gibson.

"Yes, but I want to be there on the platform"—all this breathlessly—"I'm so anxious to meet him."

"Well, go on through," Gibson told her. "I guess it'll be all right." Then to himself he soliloquized: "Why not? Perhaps she won't always be so keen to meet him; probably hasn't been married but a month or so; mebby isn't married yet at all. Far be it from me to interrupt her in such nice little attentions."

The train came in. Gibson sort of looked out of the tail of his eye for a chance to witness the happy reunion. Such sights illumine the dark recesses of the dingy old depot.

In a moment he caught sight of her. But her husband or sweetheart—if she had one or the other—was not with her. However, she was not alone. Under her arm she clutched tightly a compact brindle English bulldog with a countenance like a dissipated gargoyle.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Price of Eloquence.

The auctioneer held up a battered fiddle.

"What am I offered for this antique violin?" he pathetically inquired. "Look it over. See the blurred finger marks of remorseless time. Note the stains of the hurrying years. To the merry notes of this fine old instrument the brocaded dames of fair France may have danced the minuet in glittering Versailles. Perhaps the vestal virgins marched to its stirring rhythms in the feasts of Lupercalia. Ha, it bears an abrasion—perhaps a touch of fire. Why, this may have been the very fiddle on which Nero played when Rome burned."

"Thirty cents," said a red nosed man in the front row.

"It's yours!" cried the auctioneer cheerfully. "What next?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A South Arabian Food Plant.

Jowari, a tall, slender plant resembling corn and beaded with a grain something like millet, is the Abdali's chief crop. He feeds the stalk to his camels and eats the grain himself. Three crops a year are produced. Jowari requires little cultivation except weeding, which the Abdali does by hand, and when ripe he cuts it off close to the ground with his hunting knife. New shoots spring up from the roots to become the next crop. For a camel load of about 125 pounds he receives at Aden an average of two rupees, or $64.88. A fair yearly yield is twenty camel loads an acre.—Consular and Trade Reports.

Fairly Warned.

"Mr. Smith," spoke up the young lawyer, "I come here as a representative of your neighbor, Tom Jones, with the commission to collect a debt due him."

"I congratulate you," answered Mr. Smith, "on obtaining so permanent a job at such an early stage in your career."—Success.

TWAS GLORIOUS FOURTH

Nobody Injured and Everybody Had a Splendid Time.

Bellefonte's first "safe and sane" Fourth of July was a splendid success. As per schedule there was plenty of noise sports and parades, and there was not an accident reported in town. The day was started by the baby parade. This was very interesting and the little tots acquitted themselves nicely. The marathon race was won by Benedict Beezer with Bruce Meese second. The prizes were $5 and $4. Owing to a slight indisposition of Rev. Dr. J. A. Platts, there was no reading of the Declaration of Independence. The big parade of the afternoon started at 1:30 o'clock. It consisted of the Logan and Undine firemen, with Marshal R. A. Beck, the City Band and the boys tin horn battalion.

In the afternoon the Bellefonte ball team played Milesburg and gave the visitors a glorious drubbing. The evening's program consisted of a band concert and a very fine display of fireworks, which were set off by John Sourbeck and Hardman P. Harris from Half Moon Hill.

The sane Fourth proved a success. It has come to stay. Already several gentlemen are preparing a petition to the council to amend the present ordinance, prohibiting not only the use but also the sale of the fireworks in the borough. There was only one arrest on the Fourth for violating this ordinance. To the ladies and gentlemen who are instrumental in making the new fashioned, old fashioned Fourth of July a success, "The Republiban" takes off its hat.

The participants and prize winners of the children's parade were as follows:

Winners of 1st prize with doll carriages, $1—Margaret Bower, Elizabeth Eckenroth Kathryn Hower, Pauline Johnston, Kathryn Johnston, Annabel Krumrine.

Winners of 2nd. prize with doll carriages, 50 cents—Dorothy Corl, Lois Foreman, Kathryn McClellan, Hazel Hurley, Margaret Murphy.

Winners of 3rd. prize with doll carriages, 25 cents—Sarah Badger, Mary Beck, Mary Eckenroth, Thelma Hazel, Mildred Irvin, Isabel Davis, Gurtha Murphy, Bessie Royer, Catherine Meyer, Margaret Rowe, Augusta Shoemaker, Rose Woods, Catherine Yerger.

Winners of 1st. price ($1.00) representing different characters—Ruth Badger, Dutch girl; Eleanor McGinley, Japanese; Jeanette Cook and Rachael Lambert, in characters of 1776 and 1910; Sarah Woods and Ruth Woods most artistic.

Wagon load, entered as the jolly seven, $1.00—Martha Shoemaker, Kathryn Allison, Lucy Brew, Helen Chambers, Nancy Hunter, Ruth Gamble, Mary Warfield.

Little girls in characters with dolls—Jeanette Cook, Rachael Lambert, Ruth Woods, Sara Woods, Margaret Noonan, Geraldine Noonan, Martha Wian, Edna Wian, Bonna Dale, Margaret Yeager, Eleanor McGinley, Ruth Badger, Kathryn Murphy.

Little girls who took part in the parade with carriages—Margaret Murphy, Mary Eckenroth, Mary Whippo, Margaret Bower, Catherine Hower, Thelma Hazel, Kathryn Johnston, Annabel Krumrine, Lois Foreman, Mildred Irvin, Hazel Showers, Gurtha Murphy, Catherine McClellan, Esther Corl, Grace Corl, Bessie Royer, Sarah Badger, Elizabeth Eckenroth, Rose Woods, Isabel Davis, Catherine Meyer, Mary Beck, Catherine McClure, Hazel Hurley, Augusta Shoemaker, Deborah Lyons, Margaret Rowe, Pauline Johnston, Eloise Smith, Edrie Walker, Betty Lockington, Mabel Saxion, Catherine Yerger.

Blanchard Couple Married.

The citizens of Blanchard enjoyed a very enthusiastic celebration on the Fourth of July. Two of their highly esteemed young people, Miss Lulu B. Gardner and John N. Williams, had quietly slipped off to Milesburg, where they were married by Rev. J. B. Eldridge. Returning to Blanchard they were surprised by a large and noisy reception, including a kitchen shower. Many valuable and beautiful gifts were presented to the happy young couple and the evening was delightfully spent at the bride's home. The groom is in the employ of the Harbison & Walker brick works, at Monument. The bride is a splendid young woman and qualified in every way to take charge of a home. The many friends of the young couple wish for them a long life, with unbounded happiness and success.

BELLEFONTE ACADEMY IN 1910

Year Just Closed Most Successful in History of Institution.

We congratulate the Bellefonte Academy on its most successful school year, just closed, and on the splendid annual report presented by Rev. James P. Hughes, principal emeritus, and Professor James R. Hughes, head master. To every friend of the institution the progress achieved and honors won are a source of gratification.

The student roll at the Bellefonte Academy is representative of all parts of Pennsylvania. Western Pennsylvania, especially, is largely represented. Each year witnesses a steady increase in the attendance of boarding students, thus testifying to the fact that each year the institution is receiving greater recognition for the care and training and education of the individual student. It is, in fact, the attention devoted to the individual student that has given to the Belle-Academy its fine name and proud place in the list of leading educational institutions.

In athletics as well as in the class room the year was crowned with success. The football eleven and baseball, basketball and track teams scored numerous victories. Championship teams were turned out on both the football and baseball fields.

There will be two new members of the faculty for the next school term, which opens on Tuesday, September 13. Professor Fred E. Mallick, of Dickinson, will teach history, ancient languages and civics, while Professor David L. Harstine, of Lafayette College, will teach higher mathematics. Both new instructors come highly recommended as well fitted to be identified with the especially strong faculty of the Bellefonte Academy.

Wedding Ends In Fracas.

Because he was not invited to attend the wedding of a fellow-countryman, Joe Rackovan, a Hungarian, employed as a miner at Snow Shoe, attempted to murder George Paulhalla, of Cherry Run, on the night of July 3. There is some difference of opinion as to how Paulhalla was injured. Some assert that he was shot, while the doctors in charge state that he was stabbed in the chest. However he will likely recover. Every effort was made to catch Rackovan but up to the present time he has eluded all pursuers.

Clover Measured 5 Feet, 8 Inches.

In our last issue we published the fact that William Wolf, the contractor, had cut a piece of clover at Pleasant Gap that measured 4 feet, 2 inches. Quite naturally, we thought that was "going some", but a few days ago John S. Lambert, member of the contracting firm of Gehret & Lambert, presented us with a stalk of clover that measured 5 feet, 8 inches. He found it in the yard of his home. It is known as the mammoth clover. The seed was purchased from John G. Dubbs.

How's This for Eggs?

Rev. H. A. McKelvey, of Port Matilda, is not only a chicken fancier but a chicken financier. Since the first day of March, last, he has received 922 eggs from eleven white leghorn chickens. The eggs were received as follows: March, 220; April, 221; May, 240; June, 241, making a total of 922. The eggs realized $16.34, the cost of feed was $6.20, making the net gain, $10.14. Mr. McKelvey invites competition on these figures.

On last Saturday night Alfred Hassinger, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hassinger, of Pleasant View, near the old chain works, got out of his little bed to get a drink of water and while walking in the dark slipped and fell down stairs. The boy's arm was badly fractured and he was severely injured about the shoulder. At present we are glad to state that he is getting along very nicely.

During the Civil war he served for a short term as a member of the Fifty-third Regiment, R. V. I. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other disease put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by E. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. PENNSY. INPROVEMENTS

Enlarging Elevated. Road to Relieve Congestion at Phila.

To eliminate congestion on its tracks between Broad Street Station and West Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania Railroad is enlarging its elevated railroad between these two points and building a passenger car storage yard east of the Schuylkill. The present car yard is a mile away from Broad Street Station and in bad weather, or in rush hours, it has been found difficult to handle the shifting of trains necessary to haul some 21,000,000 people ---the number arriving and departing in 1909 on 194,368 trains. The number of passengers using Broad Street Station has increased fifty per cent. in the last ten years.

The new car yard between 20th and 23rd Streets will acommodate sixty cars, or about nine suburban trains. It will contain a 70-foot turn-table, which will eliminate the sending of all locomotives to the West Phildelphia yard for turning. To complete the yard will necessitate the building of retaining walls and embankments and the extension of the arch bridges over 21st and 22nd Streets. One hundred and five brick buildings were purchased and will be demolished to make room for this yard.

The new work will include the construction of two new bridges across the Schuylkill River. This will give room for four Main Line tracks between West Philadelphia Station and the 23rd Street interlocking plant. At the present time there are only two Main Line tracks crossing the Schuylkill River to West Philadelphia Station, and this in itself has interfered with the proper operation of Broad Street Station.

An inbound engine and empty car track is to be built from West Philadelphia, yard to the inbound Philadelphia, Baltimore] and Washington Railroad track. At present all the cars are moved over the middle bridge across the Schuylkill River and at times engines which should be sent immediately to the station are held up west of the river. This additional inbound track will lead to a free running track. Connection will also be made with the lower end of the passenger equipment yard in West Philadelphia which will give access to this yard from both the north and the south ends and relieve the congestion of the north throat of the yard.

It is expected that the entire work will be completed by December 1st and that it will cost approximately $750,000.

The Led Mule Lode.

At the back of San Bernardino, in Southern California (Barnardino is the local pronunciation), lies the desert. It is a land of aridity and inveracity. Those who dangle the bait of wealth say that over the hot and painful waste lies the trail to the lost lode, the Pegieg, the Gunsight, the Lost Cabin, the Spanish mine. Maybe not all of these are exactly in this one desert, but they are all equally lost and equally calling to the adventurous prospector. A fine prospect when the season is right for folk to pluck up their courage to go on pilgrimages.

Into San Bernardino have just come two prospectors, Col. Clyde Durham and Lieut. Col. James Desmond, footsore and empty-handed. Five months they have been pursuing a course in practical mineralogy, a liberal education in pure science, for it has brought them no practical result. With them has returned the faithful but ever melancholy companion of their wanderings, to-wit, their pack mule. Unfortunately, the records in our news omits his name, and the omission is regrettable because the mule shows himself superior, better man, better prospector. Footsore and empty-handed the wandering men, ever more deservely footsore our fellow-citizen this mule, but not empty-hoofed, in safe though inconvenient lodgment between coronet and pastern he has brought back from the gold trail the proof of wealth.

He developed a limp, the chroniclers of San Bernardino tell us, and thus it was discovered that in his hoof he had concealed a nugget "estimated to be worth $500." Let us estimate also, With gold at $20 the ounces troy, that nugget must weigh 2 pounds and 1 ounce of value, without allowing a pennyweight to the quartz gungue which must hold it. Considerable of a dornick, that. No wonder the mule limped. If only he had done as well with the other hoofs! Fancy the pride of ownership in a mule that assays $2000.

How like a mule this is. If it had been a pebble of barren country rock no bigger than a pen, that mule – any mule —would have trumpeted his woe and have taken no step until the intrusive geology had been extracted. But when he stepped on float and kicked up gold at the grass roots he says never a word until he reaches such civilization as San Bernardino affords. Then he reveals his auriferous deposit and sets the bipeds mad in the sacred famish of gold. Somewhere there is gold like pebbles, but it may be any part of five months back track on the trail of this mule who concealed his limp.

The wisdom of this mule has given the desert one more lure of gold. We hasten to claim the Led Mule Lode, wherever it may lie—and a whole lot lies at the back of San Bernardino. We lose no time in staking 600 feet along the lode, with all its dips, spurs and angles. From the New York Sun.

Ze Game of Golf.

He had come over from France and had just been asked to give his views on the ancient game of golf. With much gesticulation he did so.

"Ah," he said, "your game of golf! Yees, I know him. You put on ze tunic so red as ze Ingleesh rosbif underneath done. You strap your sack of sticks on ze back of a boy twice so small as ze bag.

"He scrape a mud pudding to make balance a leetle white ball. He make three bad tries to balance him, then very angry you call aloud, 'Feur!' Then you what you call address ze ball, and, ma foi, your address is sometimes of language to make afraid.

"You strike, and ze ball find himself in ze long grass.

"You call aloud for ze nib lunger stick and beat ze ground till your partner say, 'Ho, chuck it!' You say— But, my friend, I excuse myself to repeat what you say.

"Ah, my friend, you are a great nation, but your golf game gives me what you call ze pip!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Willing to Chance It.

Here the lecturer threw upon the screen the portrait of a man well known in the financial world, says the Chicago Tribune.

"This," he said, "is one of the great captains of finance. I do not need to mention his name. His face is familiar to all of you. Look at his corrugated brow, the furrows in his cheeks, the pouches under his eyes, the deep lines about his mouth. That face, my friends, bears the unmistakable and ineffaceable stamp of care. Anxiety has marked it indelibly. It shows the traces of sleepless nights, weary days and bitterly fought campaigns, with millions of dollars at stake. Success brings such a man no happiness. Look at him! How many of you, my friends, would change places with him? How many of you would be willing to take his wealth if compelled to assume the terrible burden of responsibility that goes with it?"

His hearers rose en masse.

"I would!" they shouted in unison.

His Unfortunate Investment.

"It's astonishing," the old settler in the little town was saying, "how real estate has advanced in this town since I came here. The corner lot this building is on, for instance, sold once for $450."

"What is it worth now?" asked the stranger.

"Five thousand."

"Well, you had a chance to get rich by investing in land yourself. I suppose you bought some real estate?"

"Yes; I bought one lot—just one."

"That has increased in value, hasn't it?"

"Yes; over 600 per cent."

"That was a good investment."

"Not so awfully good, mister," said the old settler gloomily. "I paid $10 for it, and it's worth $75 now, but it's in the cemetery. The way I figure it I've lost a heap of money by not dying forty years ago."—Youth's Companion

Punishment In Persia.

Among the Persians the usual mode of punishment is the bastinado, from which men of the highest rank are not exempt. It is inflicted with very great severity, frequently so as to render the sufferer almost a cripple for life. The victim is thrown upon his face, and each foot is passed through a loop of strong cord attached to a pole, which is raised horizontally by men, who, twisting it round, tighten the ropes and render the feet immovable. Two executioners then strike the sole alternately with switches of the pomegranate tree well steeped in water to render them supple. A store of these switches is generally ready for use in the pond which adjoins the courtyards of the houses of the great. The punishment frequently lasts for an hour or until the unfortunate victim faints from pain.

His Question.

Edgar, aged six, was recently sent to school for the first time, and upon his return home he asked, "Papa, who taught Adam the alphabet?"

THEY SIT AND LOOK.

Women Who Watch For Celebrities In a New York Restaurant.

"I always wonder," said a New York woman who lunches out a good deal, "what satisfaction the women get out of life who flock to a certain fashionable uptown restaurant at lunchtime just to see celebrities.

"They look as if they cannot afford to be there, and the truth is they do not apparently go there for food. I have watched them ordering and noted what was brought them, and almost invariably it is some such thing as cafe parfait, or an ice of some kind, or a cup of tea or of chocolate and a sandwich.

"They sit and look. The moment some stage celebrity comes in there is a craning of necks, and you hear excited whisperings, 'Oh, there's So-and-so!' mentioning an actress or a matinee idol, and the neck craning keeps on until a fresh subject for scrutiny comes in.

"You can see this sort of thing every lunchtime at this restaurant. There is a regular contingent of these rubberneckers, and they are not visitors from the far west, either."—New York Sun.

Growing Corn For Cob Pipes.

Probably not one smoker in a hundred who likes the "real American pipe"—the corncob—is aware of the fact that many acres in Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska are devoted to raising corn for the especial purpose of producing cobs suitable for fashioning into pipe bowls. The grain itself is marketed, of course, but the cob on which it grows is the real harvest and is cut carefully into proper lengths, smoothed and polished, the soft inner pulp being gouged out by specially constructed machinery. The corncob pipe goes to every country in the world where men smoke and is especially in favor in Australia and New Zealand, where it is regarded as characteristically American, because it suggests the idea of Yankee ingenuity. The brier is the favorite with Englishmen, who are probably the greatest pipe smokers in the world.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Waiting For the Note.

An English churchman tells the following:

"At one of our cathedrals the minor canon was ill and could not sing. A suffragan bishop had a good voice and volunteered to sing the litany. 'Go,' he said to the verger, 'and tell the organist that I will sing the litany and ask him to give me the reciting note.' 'Please, sir,' said the verger to the organist, 'the bishop has sent me to you to say he will sing the litany.' 'All right,' said the organist. Seeing the verger remain, he said, 'You need not stay.' 'Please, sir, the bishop asked me to to ask you if you would give him a something—I didn't quite catch—note.' 'You mean the reciting note' 'That's it, sir; that's it.' Seeing the verger still remaining, he said, 'You need not stay.' To which the verger said, 'Please, sir, shall I take it to his lordship?'"

Camel Carriages.

Camel carriages are not common conveyances in most parts of India, but on the great trunk road leading to Delhi they are frequently to be seen. They are large, double story wagons, drawn sometimes by one, sometimes by two or even three camels, according to their size. Iron bars which give them a cagelike appearance were originally intended as a defense against robbers, and the carts were probably also used for the conveyance of prisoners.

Her Sad Fate.

"What a beautiful little girl she is!"

"Yes, and, just think, she'll have to marry a mere American unless her father chirks up and exhibits more ability as a financier than he has ever shown thus far."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Stingy.

"He is a stingy old curmudgeon, isn't he?"

"The worst I ever saw. Why, he'd haggle over the cost of building a spite fence."—Exchange.

Mothers' Congress to Meet In Denver June 10.

MRS. SCHOFF, PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL CONGRESS OF MOTHERS.

The National Congress of Mothers will meet this year in Denver from June 10 to 15. Wide will the city throw her gates to the revered body, the mothers of America, in annual congress, to which thirty-two states will send delegates this year.

Wherever there are mothers and fathers there is room for this work. Interest your friends near and far in forming mothers' circles for study. Tell them of the Parent Teachers' association, that branch of work in which the fathers gladly co-operate to weld the interests of home and school.

As a matter of economics it is not enough that each father and mother should guard and guide their own children. The world's children are at their door, and your children may reflect the obliquities of the children at large. To welcome and instruct the alien, both parent and child, is part of the Mothers' Congress work. Its founder believed "that the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon was due to his love of home" and "that in better parenthood the world's problems would have their solutions." In this belief the congress exists, emphasizing the sacredness of home.

The very heart of the whole work is in organized efforts of fathers and mothers to study childhood and fit themselves to be the highest type of parent. The work of the congress is civic work in its best and broadest sense. The finest form of philanthropic work is this united, concerted effort for children.

For the Summer Curtain.

Dainty curtains for a bedroom in the summer home may be made from dotted swiss in coin size widely scattered.

Make the curtains to the sash with a five inch hem down the fronts and across the bottom, or the hem should be wide enough for three lines of dots.

Using each dot for a basis, work in it a daisy design in colored mercerized cotton. Make the petals with loops of the threads, as in lazy daisy stitch, bringing them all to center of dot and spreading on circumference, where they are caught with a tiny stitch.

These daisies may be all in one color, in two tones of a given shade or even two contrasting shades. The coloring should be alternated. For instance, where there are three rows of dots in the hem the two outer ones can be worked in a pale yellow and the center in orange, or every other dot should be light and the following dark.

Where more color is wanted the hems can be turned up on right side, mitered at corner and the hemming covered with a line of brierstitching or in two rows of half inch chain stitch to correspond in color with the dots.

Linen Closet.

To one house with large rooms and plenty of closets there are a hundred apartments so cramped for space that a good sized linen closet is an unheard of luxury. But since linen closets are a necessity to the careful housekeeper there is nothing to do but to make one.

A practical closet may be made of packing cases, one, two or three, as one needs them and has room for them. Fasten the lids with hinges and line the sides and bottom with unbleached calico, in which, if desired, might be stitched pockets to hold sachets of sweet lavender. The lids should be padded outside with horsehair and a permanent rough cover stitched on. Over all is fitted a neat cretonne cover, with a flounce hanging around the sides. If possible it is best to have three boxes, one for the sheets, one for the tablecloths, napkins, doilies, etc., and the other for pillowcases, bolster cases and towels.

Shirt waist boxes may be constructed in the same manner.

Treating a Marabou Stole.

The softness and beauty of marabou tempt women to the purchase of its stole forms, only to find they get stringy with a little wear. A correspondent of Harper's Bazar tells what she did to freshen hers: "After shaking it vigorously for five minutes I suspended it from a hook over the gas range, upon which a kettleful of water was boiling vigorously. Here it was left to steam for thirty minutes, when the gas was turned out, the water allowed to cool and the marabou to dry. In another half hour it was as fluffy as when new and a decided improvement upon its former condition."

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can

PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

Cut This Out

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts, we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this free coupon to the KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO, ILL., with their name and address and 10c in silver or stamps to pay postage.
